A Relationship Contract for Dementia Caregivers

Presented by Deb Hallisey, who lost her job because her work as her parent's caregiver took too much time away from that job. As a result, she founded her company, Advocate for Mom and Dad. Deb writes on caregiving issues for adult children of aging parents at her website, AdvocateforMomandDad.com.

Deb is the author of two books. "Your Caregiver Relationship Contract" is a practical, step-by-step guide for discussing relationship issues between caregivers and their care partners. "A Relationship Contract for Dementia Caregivers" provides the reader with practical knowledge and necessary steps at each stage of dementia. These books will help you continuously adapt your practices and expectations to meet the needs of the person you care for, as well as your own needs, throughout the dementia journey.

Attendees will receive a copy of "A Relationship Contract for Dementia Caregivers." Light refreshments will be served.
