The Sandwich Generation

Getting Help as a Caregiver

Presented by Carl Archer, Certified Elder Law Attorney, Managing Attorney for the Archer Brogan Elder Law & Estate Planning firm

The term “The Sandwich Generation” refers to young to middle-aged adults who are simultaneously raising children and supporting their aging parents. More than 1 in 10 parents in the United States also care for an older adult, spending about 3 hours each day on caregiving duties between their children and parents. Being a sandwich generation caregiver can be exhausting, expensive and emotional: juggling it all isn’t easy, but there are ways to make it easier.
